Bay political candidates address issues in forum

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Bay St. Louis citizens sought a variety of opinions from city political candidates Wednesday night at a political forum conducted in the Hancock County Courthouse.

A capacity crowd of over 100 people jammed the second-floor courtroom and submitted questions regarding street repairs, drainage, wastewater, lawsuits, city services, workshop meetings and taxes.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce sponsored the event in which a 'screening committee' presented written questions from the audience to mayoral and City Council candidates.

MAYORAL CANDIDATES

In opening remarks, incumbent Mayor Larry Bennett and Joe Buccola, the only Republican mayoral candidate, both simply stated their desire to serve the people.

Mayoral candidate Vic Frankiewicz called for more efficient use of tax dollars and a need for better streets and drainage.

Regarding use of city equipment on private property, Buccola said he would follow laws regarding such action.

Bennett defended authorizing city crews to clear 'two things' at Crosby Furniture's burned out store as helping 'someone who suffered a disaster.'

Frankiewicz opposes such action. All three candidates endorsed police training programs.

Bennett said he would retain Chief Douglas Williams and expressed a desire to enlarge the force.

Frankiewicz maintained throughout the forum he would make 'no guarantees' regarding hiring, but would retain those found 'doing their job' once he is in office.

But he stressed a need for better cooperation with county and state law enforcement officials.

Buccola reported he is conducting a survey regarding police chief position and had not reached a decision.

Bennett said due to deteriorated proposed operation is completed.

Bennett endorsed joining the Waveland system.

Regarding secret 'workshop' meetings regularly conducted by the City Council in which the public and the news media are not allowed to attend, Frankiewicz and Buccola endorsed conducting all meetings publicly.

Bennett said, "I can live with or without them."

City streets were described as 'in deplorable condition' by the incumbent. He noted high street repair costs, but pledged to seek more funds for street improvement.

Frankiewicz criticized present road maintenance procedures and stressed a need to also improve drainage city-wide to prevent rapid street deterioration.

Buccola said streets should be maintained 'at all costs when there is an upcoming election and when there's not an election.'

In reference to the Spanish Acres area's drainage problems, Buccola stated he was not familiar with the problem, but is conducting a study and will state his position in newspapers.

Bennett reported several studies of Spanish Acres were available, but the council would not approve any project due to a lack of funds.

Frankiewicz believes maintaining ditches 'regularly' in the Spanish Acres area would solve most flooding problems.

When asked what budget reductions could be initiated, Bennett replied it 'was impossible to say' where cuts could be made.

Frankiewicz said gas line leakage condition of the city's gas system he would not advise selling it to a private management firm.

Frankiewicz and Buccola both said they had not reached a decision regarding the gas system.

In reference to a City Court operation, Frankiewicz reaffirmed his 'no commitment' position.

Buccola noted 'too many favors' and 'liberal things' occur in City Court.

Bennett endorsed City Judge Joseph Benvenuti and said he would be retained.

When asked if race would be an issue in hiring police and fire chiefs, Buccola stated only qualifications would be considered.

Bennett said he would also retain Fire Chief Andrew Lizana.

Frankiewicz maintained his position.

Both Buccola and Frankiewicz

Waveland Board donates room for YMCA branch

By BRENT MACEY

The Waveland Board of Aldermen Wednesday authorized use of a room in the Waveland Civic Center to set up the first Young Men's Christian Association branch in Hancock County.

The room which currently houses pipe and pipe fittings for the city utility department, will be cleared out 'as soon as possible' so the program can begin, board members agreed.

Gene Rogers, director for new Harrison and Hancock County 'satellite' centers of the Ocean Springs YMCA, informed the board of a $49,000 grant through the Criminal Justice Planning Commission in Jackson makes expansion into Harrison and Hancock Counties possible.

He said the money will be used to pay salaries and other expenses for YMCA staff members to work with schools, recreation departments, youth courts, police and sheriff's departments along the coast in an effort to involve youths in all three coastal counties in 'meaningful activities.'

"The program is not designed to deal only with problem youths," Rogers said. "It is designed for all youths to develop a healthy lifestyle; one that opens new horizons and encourages the participants to get involved."

He said no youth will be alienated, no matter what his or her background.

Rogers said the initial phase of the program in Hancock County will deal with supervision of youths from ages 10 18 in numerous activities.

The room donated by the Waveland board will be used to start a weightlifting program, Rogers said.

Rogers stated there is a great need in Hancock County for a YMCA program and stated the baseball diamonds and parks make Hancock County 'beautiful for the development of this type of program.'

He said the initial grant request of $130,000 was cut to $49,000 and resulted in reducing the number of salaried employees to four for the two counties.

He said volunteer staff will be necessary for continued development of the Waveland program and said con-

Community also culpable for juvenile crime rate

By BRENT MACEY

Responsibility for increasing numbers of burglaries and other crimes in Hancock County at the hands of youths may not solely be their fault when a possibility exists the community itself may also be held culpable, Michael Haas, Hancock County Youth referee said recently.

Haas referred to statistics which show cost for maintaining a delinquent child in a state institution such as Oakley or Columbia Training School to be $41 per day or $15,149 per year per child.

He stated statistics show keeping a child in the community in some type of program can cost taxpayers 83 cents per day or $304 per year per child by comparison.

Haas said keeping a child in the community in many cases involves placing a child on probation and having that child supervised by a youth court counselor.

"It appears keeping a child at home and working with them and their families would be economically advantageous for us whenever possible," he said.

He stated this community needs to set priorities since 'young people are a precious gift from God and a valuable asset to our community.'

"They need to be treated as such. The youth of the community are the future of the community," he said.

Haas stated, "The apathy shown toward our youth is a major contributing factor in the increase of juvenile crime and the recidivism rate of the same offenders in this county."

The referee advised, 'immediate' community involvement and interest in establishing positive programs for youth as an alternative to having young people 'run the streets for want of nothing better to do.'

He recommended establishing a recreational program such as a teen center or gymnasium.

Haas recommended sacrifice 'of time and energy' for young people be shared by churches, community civic organizations, parents, teachers, senior citizens, social agencies and private citizens.

He added, a financial sacrifice may

Sound shrimping closed north of Intracoastal

By EDGAR PEREZ

Officials of the Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources said Senate Bill No. 2872, when signed into law by Gov. William Winter Thursday, became effective immediately.

"The Mississippi Sound north of the Intracoastal Waterway is now closed to shrimping by anyone except boats licensed to catch live bait," BMR's Dr. Richard Leard said Friday.

In addition, Leard added, all Mississippi territorial waters will be closed to shrimping on May 1.

The state's territorial waters extend three miles beyond the barrier islands, he pointed out.

Leard said except for the activity of licensed live bait boats, all trawling in the closed areas will remain prohibited until reopening of the regular shrimp season in June.

Leard said his department had been under the impression provisions of the bill which amended Section 49-15-15 of the Mississippi Code to close shrimping in the Sound north of the Intracoastal from Jan. 1 each year until season opening in June would not be effective until the beginning of 1982.

But the bureau was informed Friday that amendment would be effective immediately upon signing of the bill by the governor.

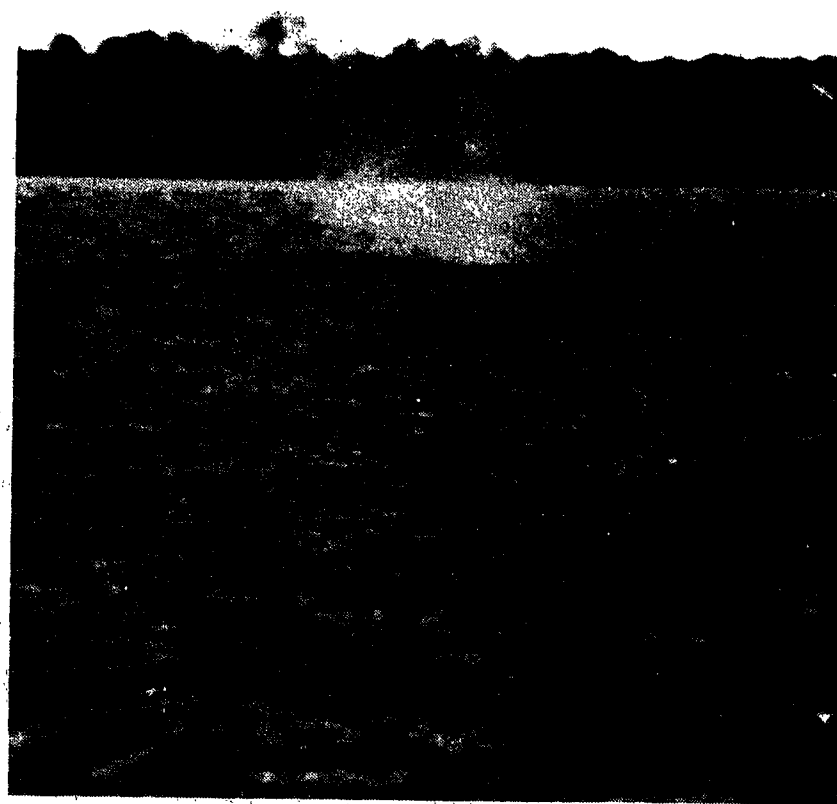

The amendment also establishes the closing of those waters south of the Intracoastal to the territorial limits on May 1 and that provision is likewise effective immediately, Leard said.

Shrimpers desiring more information on the restrictions may contact the bureau's Division of Salt Water Fisheries in Long Beach at 864-4602.

WATER SPOUT IN BAY—An ominous water spout funnel, above, descends from a black cloud above Bay St. Louis and vacuums water, below, from the Bay. Tornado warnings were issued in Harrison County early Thursday afternoon as the water spout touched down offshore from Washington Avenue, moved northeast across the railroad and US-90 bridges and disappeared. Luckily the potentially dangerous weather phenomenon caused no damage or injury, but awed many nearby citizens. Law enforcement personnel kept a watchful eye as the spout harmlessly traced its path on Bay waters. (Staff photos by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Circa 1900: Hard times drove family from Missouri to Mississippi

By S. Grady Thigpen

"While passing through a community in the Mississippi Delta heavily populated with blacks, black women crowded around the wagon in which my two sisters and I were riding, asking that we tell their fortunes. They had mistaken us for gypsies.

"I had never told fortunes in my life, and neither had my sisters; but sensing that this was an opportunity to pick up some badly needed money, I proceeded to pick up a deck of cards and to tell fortunes at 50 cents each."

E. C. Burton, long time resident of McNeill, had this experience in 1900, just as he entered Mississippi for the first time. The Burtons lived on a rocky farm in Missouri.

Times were hard, winters long. The Burton family decided to move to a warmer climate with the hope that they could get along better.

Since Mississippi joined the Gulf and the climate there much milder, a map of that state was ordered.

When the map arrived the family spread it on the dining table. They went over the names of the post offices in the extreme southern end of the state.

They had never heard of any of the places on the map.

They had no idea of the size of any of the places named on the map.

The old man liked the name of Biloxi, and he liked its location on the Gulf. The wife and mother liked Pearlinton. She said it sounded better. The two girls became fascinated with the name Chinquapin, and insisted that that was the place they wanted to move to. E. C. did not particularly care. In the end they decided to move to Chinquapin.

Papa Burton sold his farm and most of their personal belongings. With part of the money they bought a tent, and then spent most of the balance for a horse and buggy for the use of the old people.

The tent and the remaining belongings were loaded on the two horse farm wagon the family owned. E. C. Burton and his two sisters rode in the wagon.

They started south for Chinquapin in the spring of 1900 with everything they owned, with the pair of horses pulling the loaded wagon and the new horse pulling the buggy.

They were on the road over eight weeks. In good weather they made about 20 miles a day over dusty roads.

In bad weather they slipped and slid along only a few miles a day over muddy roads. Some days the weather was so bad they made no progress at all.

They carried some food along with them, but most of their own food and feed for the horses was bought from farmers or stores along the way.

They did all their cooking in pots over open fires.

They would camp early in the evening and cook enough at one time to last for the next day.

An hour before daylight, E. C. Burton would get up and feed the horses so that they would have time to eat and be ready to hitch to the vehicles by daylight.

At daybreak each morning they would have the tent down and loaded on the wagon, the horses hitched up and be ready to start on another day's drive toward Chinquapin.

After days of travel they reached Helena, Ark. where, according to their map, they would cross the Mississippi much money so easily. The next day the girls put on their loudest and most colorful dresses. When we would approach a negro settlement the girls would stand up in the wagon so as to be better seen. The negro women would flock around us. Money was scarce and most of the women had very little to pay with. We took whatever we could get.

"For 50 cents we would tell a long wordy fortune to give them their money's worth. For 25 cents it would be about half as long. For a dime it would be short.

"The money rolled in for several days, but as we began to reach the hill country, there were fewer negroes. The few we did come across had no money, so our income dried up.

"After leaving the delta section, we noticed some suspicious looking men who seemed to be following us. We had been warned by a farmer a day or so before that there were horse thieves in the section towards which we were heading, and that we had better not turn our horses out to graze at night.

"My father and I took turns guarding the horses, one or the other of us being on guard with a shotgun cocked for business the whole night through.

"No attempt was made to steal the horses' most probably because we were guarding them so closely.

"One day while traveling over the roughest road we had encountered since leaving Missouri, and just a day or so after we had left the delta country, the tire on one of the wagon wheels came off.

"I took the wheel back some miles to where we had seen a blacksmith shop, getting there late in the day. The blacksmith worked on the wheel until dark.

"We got up at daybreak the next morning to try to get the wheel fixed as soon as possible. It took him all day to get it ready. It was almost dark when I started back with the repaired wheel to where my folks were.

"Not being familiar with the country, I got lost in the darkness, finally ending up at a farmer's house further away from our camp than the blacksmith shop was. I slept there until daylight and hurried on to our camp. We lost two days there.

"As we traveled toward Chinquapin, there was much guessing and speculation among all the members of the family about the size of the place and what it would look like. The girls, always optimistic, in their imagination saw Chinquapin as a well kept, typical little southern town with lots of young people there, particularly handsome young men.

"My mother pictured it as a friendly village where everyone knew everyone else. My dad said that it must be an old time southern town peopled with conservative, friendly southern folks.

"All pictured Chinquapin as each one wished it to be. As for me," said E. C., "I did not worry about it and did not specially care. In the end I was the only one who was not disappointed.

"By watching the map closely and inquiring the way, we finally reached Chinquapin post office, which was then at the present Byrd's Chapel. There was no town there as we had supposed, not even a village.

"Peter Harvey was the postmaster with the post office in his house. There were two or three other families living in the neighborhood.

"Mr. Harvey and the others were extremely kind to us. We camped there for several days, spending the time repairing our wagon, buggy and harness and resting the horses which had been on the River. The river was high and they were told they could not cross until it went down. After two or three days of waiting, they persuaded the ferryman to carry them across the river into Mississippi.

It was while passing through the upper Mississippi Delta that E. C. and his sisters became fortune tellers.

E. C. said, "When the black women first came running to our wagon to get their fortunes told, we were surprised. At first we hesitated, but when we realized that we had been mistaken for gypsies, and, finding the women so insistent, we decided on the spur of the moment to try our hands at telling fortunes.

"We needed money badly. We had a deck of cards in the wagon with which we had been playing as we rode along. I had seen gypsies use cards in telling fortunes and knew how they did it, so when one of the women offered me 50 cents to tell her fortune, I hesitated no longer.

"With the first experience, it was easier the next time. We took in several dollars, which to us was like manna from heaven.

"The whole family was elated that we had made so road for about two months.

"The Harveys told us of a vacant house over at Sones Chapel, the only one they knew of. We went on over there, found the empty house, rented it and stayed there for several months. Again, the people were most hospitable.

"McNeill was then a thriving place with a big turpentine still and several small saw mills. We got jobs there and moved to McNeill in 1900 and I have been there since.

"My father soon became afflicted with 'traveler's itch' again and moved on over to Texas. But I had had enough riding over the country in a wagon, and stayed on in McNeill with my regular job."

The Spinal Column

BY WILLIAM L. POWELL, D.C.

Low Back and Hip Pain

Many times throughout the year, a patient with low back or leg pain comes to the office with a diagnosis of "strain" or "sprain" already made. Generally heat, braces, medications, and traction have already been applied without giving any lasting relief. Our continued success in treating these cases stems mainly from our careful evaluation of any pelvic misalignments and of course, proper treatment (once the true problem is identified).

Falls and accidents can easily influence the pelvis and often if symptoms arise following an accident, proper examination and treatment may well avoid present and future problems.

Hancock reappraisal is Mississippi 'show case'

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County reappraisal program is well underway and expected to be completed by the 1983 deadline set by the state of Mississippi, Edward Murtagh, county tax collector-assessor said recently.

Ariel photography has been completed and mappers hired by the county as paid employees are busy plotting quadrants and property line boundaries on those maps in an extension office of the tax collector's-assessor's office located on Court Street in Bay St. Louis.

In addition, those mappers are training county personnel to take over the mapping operation after they leave, James Cheatham, mapper for the county said Friday.

"The county will be able to manage the reappraisal program by itself in the future and will not have to hire outside help to continue the operation of the program at a future date," he stated.

Murtagh said Hancock County is the 'show case' for Mississippi because of the county's early start in the reappraisal project and also because the county is handling that operation in an inhouse manner.

He said Hancock County is the only county in Mississippi not relying on contracting mapping companies to come in and handle the project for the county.

As a result, Murtagh said the county will save some $500,000 or more before the program is completed.

While the mappers are working in the office on Court Street, five women from Hancock County are measuring and listing improvements (homes or buildings) throughout the county.

Murtagh said approximately 6,128 improvements have been measured and listed as of one week ago.

He said there are approximately 11,000 improvements throughout the county.

Murtagh, at a meeting with the Waveland Board of Aldermen, said the women are now measuring and listing approximately 48 homes a day in comparison eight homes a day when the program started. He said the state officials thought the women could not do the job at the beginning of the program and advised not to hire them.

"I feel they are doing a fantastic job," Murtagh said. "We could not have picked a more capable crew."

The measuring and listing includes listing exact dimensions, an improvement and also includes noting the type of foundation, carpeting, plumbing, wiring and air conditioning.

All the this data and more is noted on a 'flimsy' which workers use in the field. Later that card is duplicated on a transfer card in the office with the house plans drawn to scale.

Murtagh said that information and more will be taken into consideration when time comes for actually assessing values of the improvements and property.

He stated a local index relating to the state of the economy will have to be figured into the final assessment.

"The assessment will be the final stage of the program for that reason," Murtagh said.

"If we are in a depression when that time comes and nobody can afford to buy property, then the local index figure will be low and the assessed value of improvements will reflect that figure," he said.

Murtagh said their will be public hearings held and appointments can be made if people feel they have not been assessed fairly when they receive their new appraisal value.

"We are doing nothing secretive. When the time comes anybody who feels they have not been appraised correctly are welcomed to make an appointment and come down and look at what information we have gathered on their property and discuss it," he said.

"We are not going to be assessing property and saying this is the final word," he continued. "People will have recourse to discuss any mistakes we may have made."

We honor Vietnam veterans as true Americans

Today has been proclaimed Vietnam War Veterans Day by an Act of the Congress of the United States.

Millions of Americans answered the call to arms during the Vietnam action.

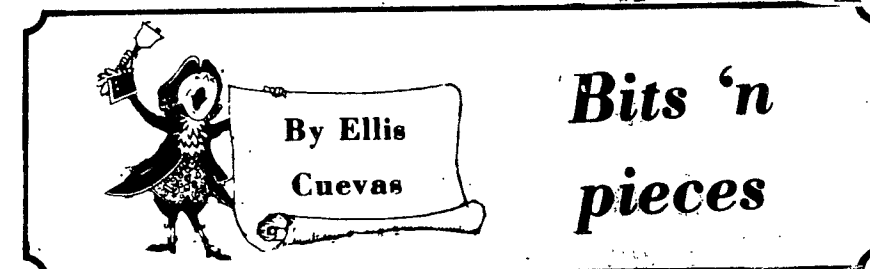

There were hundreds from Hancock County in this group of loyal Americans.

Whether you agreed or disagreed with America's involvement in the Vietnam conflict, we feel it has nothing to do with the fact that the loyal Americans who fought in the conflict should be recognized and remembered.

Many Americans gave their life for this country. They should be remembered in our prayers. Today many still bear the scars, both physically and mentally, of the war. They should be treated with respect.

Those who escaped death and permanent injury physically or mentally are among us in all walks of life. They showed their patriotism for America and can walk with their heads high.

We know there were those in the Vietnam era who burned their draft cards and some who fled the country. Our feelings for them is at the bottom of the barrel. We feel they should still keep their heads in the sand and should never have been allowed to return, because they were not patriotic Americans.

Bits 'n pieces

I was a good crowd Wednesday night at the forum sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

We are glad so many citizens are interested in the opinions of the various candidates for the upcoming Bay election.

We are, like many others, keeping our fingers crossed until the funds arrive for the repair of Beach Boulevard.

Many promises have been made of funds for the repair only to be turned down later.

The County Officials have worked tirelessly on the securing of funds, and we hope this time is a success.

Contestants are lining up for the big super 'Buck or Two Beauty Revue' scheduled for Monday, May 4 at Sy Rosenthal Gym.

The fund raiser is sponsored by the employees and friends of Hancock General Hospital.

Anyone interested in being a contestant, or making a contribution may contact Jeannie Moran or Donna Whitfield at 467-9081.

Remember, proceeds will be used for the beautification of the patients' rooms.

We urge everyone to participate, even if it is just by attending the event. A donation of only $3 will be accepted at the door.

We hope you remembered to turn your clock ahead one hour last night.

We have to congratulate our neighbor to the east, The Tarpon Beacon, on celebrating its 100th anniversary last week.

Parnell McKay, publisher, noted at Rotary Wednesday that the newspaper was 100 years old, and not him.

Our records tell us that the first issue of The Sea Coast Echo in 1892 was printed by The Tarpon Beacon as the Echo's printing presses were not yet installed.

We know Parnell is not 100 years old, but we know he cut his teeth on The Tarpon Beacon Newspaper, as his father owned it before him.

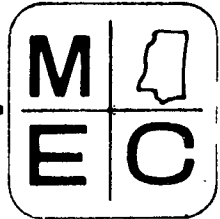

Congratulations, Parnell, we hope you and The Tarpon Beacon are around for another 100 years.

A case study of one Mississippi municipality's expansion of its manufacturing base has been developed by the Mississippi Economic Council and is being provided to municipalities across the state.

"Home-owned Industry in Houston, Mississippi — An Industrial Development Case Study" is an in-depth analysis of successful efforts to encourage small business development within that community, according to MEC chairman Lewis P. Mallory Jr., a Starkville bank executive.

The case study was developed by the Council's Economic Development Committee chaired by E. B. Robinson Jr., a Jackson bank executive, and presented to MEC's Board of Directors at its April 21 meeting in Jackson.

"MEC has identified six steps that must be taken to move the state off the bottom of the economic ladder and the City of Houston has excelled in one area frequently overlooked by many municipalities," said Mallory. "That area is in the development of small, home-owned industries."

Presently, 15 home-grown, home-owned, and home-operated industries are operating within the city. In most cases, the community's private industrial development organization — the Chickasaw Development Foundation — has been directly involved in the encouragement and development of these industries.

The Foundation was organized in the early 1950s and since then 22 industries have located in Houston, including 16 locally owned plants.

The city's present population is estimated at 3,723 — up from 2,577 in 1960 — and per capita income for the county rose from $2,329 in 1970 to $5,479 in 1978.

For Chickasaw County, manufacturing employment rose from 1,960 in 1961, to 3,427 in 1971, and to 4,780 in early 1981.

Sales tax collections for Houston climbed from $573,853 in 1970 to $1,403,726 in 1980.

Based upon this case study, the following conclusions and recommendations are suggested by MEC for Mississippi communities interested in self improvement.

—A community interested in economic advancement must be committed to a policy of growth, and it must be willing to provide the community facilities required for that growth.

—"Leadership" is one of the keys to economic advancement. Any community interested in industrial development must have leadership from both the business community and from its public officials. Generally, this leadership will originate in the business community. Community leaders must be personally and actively involved in the economic development process.

—Local financial institutions should be committed to active participation in the economic development effort of the community. Such participation should include executive involvement in development committee activities, advice and counsel to public bodies and officials, and other activities, which encourage local entrepreneurship.

—Community leadership should maintain open communications with manufacturers and small business owners in the community, and the leadership must be willing to assist in meeting community-related needs of business.

—Community leaders should create and help to maintain a favorable business climate within the community.

Last month you made some reference to a special vocabulary used by retailers in describing various sales, and also something about when to expect certain sales. What's The Rest Of The Story?

Dear WTOTS: We discussed the terminology bit last week. So, here is the calendar of traditional retail sales as compiled by the US Department of Labor.

March—Children's shoes, hosiery, luggage, skis, skates, sewing machines, winter sportswear.

April—Women's and children's coats and suits, dresses, infants' wear.

May—Blankets and linens, fans, garden supplies, handbags, lingerie, tires, TV, towels.

June—Building materials and lumber, frozen foods, furniture and fabrics.

July—Air conditioners, appliances, bathing suits (after July 4), colognes, men's shirts.

August—Bedding and linens, camping equipment, new cars, coats, hardware, paint, Christmas gifts and school clothes and supplies.

September—Car batteries and mufflers, summer clothing, dishes, furniture, lamps, silverware.

October—Bicycles, fishing equipment, glassware, home furnishings, hosiery.

November—Blankets, quilts, dresses, children's clothes, housecoats, used cars, ranges.

December—Coats for women and children, party items, quilts and suits for men and boys.

January—Cocktail and evening dresses, men's winter coats and suits, children's parkas, paint, hardware, furniture, appliances, stereos, water heaters and sporting goods.

February—Air conditioners, bedding, art supplies, clothes dryers, china, rugs, toys, lamps, men's winter suits.

Retail experts find that you may be able to save up to 40 per cent by buying at the various seasonal sales.

But, you will also find many progressive merchants now offering substantial savings before the end of the season. This benefits you in that you can buy the goods when they are really needed, generally with a wider selection from which to choose. Also, often last year's reduced price goods are out to be equally reduced in value when it comes back in season.

SPECIAL REPORT:

El Salvador Crisis

Congress and the American people understandably are concerned about the situation in El Salvador and our policy toward that embattled Central American nation.

The El Salvador crisis is the latest among a series of revolutionary outbursts and internal turmoil which have wracked the governments of nations in that part of the Western Hemisphere.

President Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig have made it clear that American policy under this administration will be directed toward halting Communist expansion and interference in the internal affairs of nations in the region.

As the State Department has reported to Congress, there is growing evidence that Marxist revolutionaries in El Salvador, and elsewhere, have been provided guns and ammunition, and considerable encouragement, to foment trouble and seek to overthrow duly established governments.

There is a growing awareness that the Soviet Union, through its Cuban puppet state and Middle Eastern terrorists, has engineered the funneling of weapons and other war material through Nicaragua to the Marxist guerrillas in El Salvador.

On the eve of the Reagan administration's taking office in January, these El Salvadoran guerrillas launched a so-called "final offense," to overthrow the Christian Democratic, military-backed government. However, this offensive apparently failed, both militarily and politically, for lack of armed success and popular support. The people of El Salvador evidently do not want this Marxist group to control their country.

In an effort to bolster the Christian Democratic government in its struggle to remain free of Communist domination, the United States has begun a program to provide economic and military aid to El Salvador. This assistance hopefully will enable El Salvador to crush the Marxist rebels, and continue the economic improvements and reforms necessary to reach its goal of a more democratic society for its people.

Elections for a popular constituent assembly are scheduled next year, and presidential elections are slated in 1983 — if freedom and stability can be preserved in El Salvador.

Apparently, the new American policy of a tougher attitude toward Cuba and Russia is having a positive effect, coupled with the lack of success by El Salvadoran guerrillas and the growing realization that these revolutionaries do not enjoy significant popular support within the country.

Other countries in Central America, namely Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras and Belize, are anxiously watching the outcome of the conflict in El Salvador. Their fates are undeniably linked with the success or failure of the Communist-backed revolutionary activity in that nation.

Some Americans have voiced fears that any American involvement in El Salvador could lead to another Vietnam type struggle. That is not very likely, for several reasons.

The most important is geography. El Salvador is not half-way around the world, bordering on huge and potentially hostile Communist giants, as was South Vietnam. It is literally in our own backyard. San Salvador, the capital, is about as far from Biloxi as Jackson is from Washington.

The security and economic problems resulting from a Communist takeover of any Central American country would be extremely serious for our nation. We have substantial trade with Latin America and our citizens are extremely sensitive to the potential danger of hostile forces if the governments of those countries are dominated by Marxist revolutionaries.

For these reasons, I am supportive of the President and Secretary Haig in their present efforts to contain Communist infiltration of Central America, and will continue to support them as long as their actions are prudent and restrained.

America must regain the respect of other nations, and re-establish the trustworthiness of our word in international circles.

The chaos and uncertainty in our foreign policy in recent years has disturbed our friends and allies and emboldened our adversaries to take more aggressive steps. This situation has to be reversed, and perhaps El Salvador offers the best opportunity for us to do so.

Knowing Health Norms Is Important

How do you know when you're sick?

Foolish question. We feel badly when we're sick.

But there are degrees of illness, all the way from minor discomfort to severe illness. Knowing what some of the body's norms should be will help in determining when the body is seriously off pattern.

Individual temperatures vary. A slight fever in one person may not be a fever at all in another. Temperatures and pulse rates are different for children and adults.

The average normal temperature taken by mouth is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit (37 degrees Centigrade). Rectal temperature usually is one degree higher. To find out what is normal for you, take your temperature when you know that you are not sick, at the same time of day, each day for several days. If your temperature varies slightly from 98.6, write it down by your name on the family medical chart, and on the medical ID card in your wallet.

The average normal pulse rate for an adult at rest is 70 to 72 beats per minute.

The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care points out that individual pulse rates vary, and can be either higher or lower than average. To find your normal pulse, place the fingertips of your second and index fingers of one hand at your wrist just below the thumb on the palm side of your other hand. Count the pulsations for 60 seconds. This is your pulse rate. Be sure to do this when you are restful and quiet.

Pulse rates in children vary according to age. The average for a newborn infant is about 120 beats per minute. A child's pulse rate can be anywhere from 60 to 90 beats per minute. The older child has a rate of 80.

Fever, nausea and headaches may, or may not, indicate something serious. If any of these symptoms persists for several days, medical attention should be sought.

Dear Sir:

I hope you will let me take this means to publicly thank some people of our community for their kindness, courtesy and genuine love for their fellow man.

Last Sunday afternoon it was necessary for me to use the services of the Emergency Room of Hancock General Hospital.

Everyone on duty between four and five o'clock showed me the greatest consideration in trying to save my husband's life.

I would like to particularly mention Ula Mae Lindsay of the housekeeping department, Nurse Kolodziej and Dr. Sutton in the Emergency Room, and then Carl Banderet from the Coroner's Office.

They made it possible for me to get through the rest of the day without losing my mind.

Please help me tell everyone in this community what wonderful people live and work among us.

Sincerely,

Some un-asked-for advice for President Reagan...

Perhaps the time has come to appoint an economist to the United States Supreme Court.

It is not just that I generally distrust lawyers — and consider them a bit sleazy at times. And not just because small print jibberish that would confound the Framers of our Constitution is what passes as the law of the land in the United States these days.

More important, it's because the actions of the U.S. Supreme Court over the past several decades would indicate that men and women trained in law school come away with little or no understanding or appreciation of the economic system upon which this nation was built. If economics is the dismal science, Supreme Court justices and clerks are dimly ignorant of our economic heritage and have failed to guard economic liberties with the same vigor that they guard other rights.

This point is made, at length, in an important new book, Economic Liberties and the Constitution (University of Chicago Press, 382 pages) by Bernard Siegan, Distinguished Professor of Law and Director of Law and Economic Studies at the University of San Diego Law School.

Released earlier this year, the volume traces the court's historical interpretation of economic and property rights, concentrating on the period since 1937 — when the New Deal court reversed years of legal precedence and decided, according to Siegan, that "in this area there is no Constitutional protection."

Citing cases involving big business — a drug store chain — and little business, Siegan makes a persuasive case that the Court has created a spurious distinction between those "fundamental" rights it is willing to protect (speech, religion, and privacy, as examples) and those it is unwilling to defend against government abuse (the right to enter into a business, trade, or occupation, to produce and distribute goods and services, to use property).

Yet, he argues, protecting economic rights was very much on the minds of the Framers of the U.S. Constitution.

Unwarranted interference with economic affairs by state legislatures under the Articles of Confederation was one of the grievances that led to the calling of the Constitutional Convention in the first place. And the document itself, with the Bill of Rights, contains several clauses that were intended to protect property rights — including the provisions in Article I prohibiting the states from passing laws "impairing the obligation of contracts," and the guarantees in Amendment V against the taking of property without just compensation, and against deprivation "of life, liberty or property, without due process of law."

During America's first 160 years, the Supreme Court consistently acted to protect these rights from state infringement, leading the 19th-century observer de Tocqueville to remark, "In no country of the world is the love of property more active and more anxious than it is in the United States."

All that ended in 1937, Siegan says.

Perhaps today's Justices are so far out of touch with these values that we can't reasonably expect them to understand that the right to trade in goods and services (economic liberty) is no less important than the right to trade in ideas (freedom of speech).

Maybe that's why we need an economist to sit among the jurists and reacquaint them with America's economic traditions.

Why are utility bills so high?

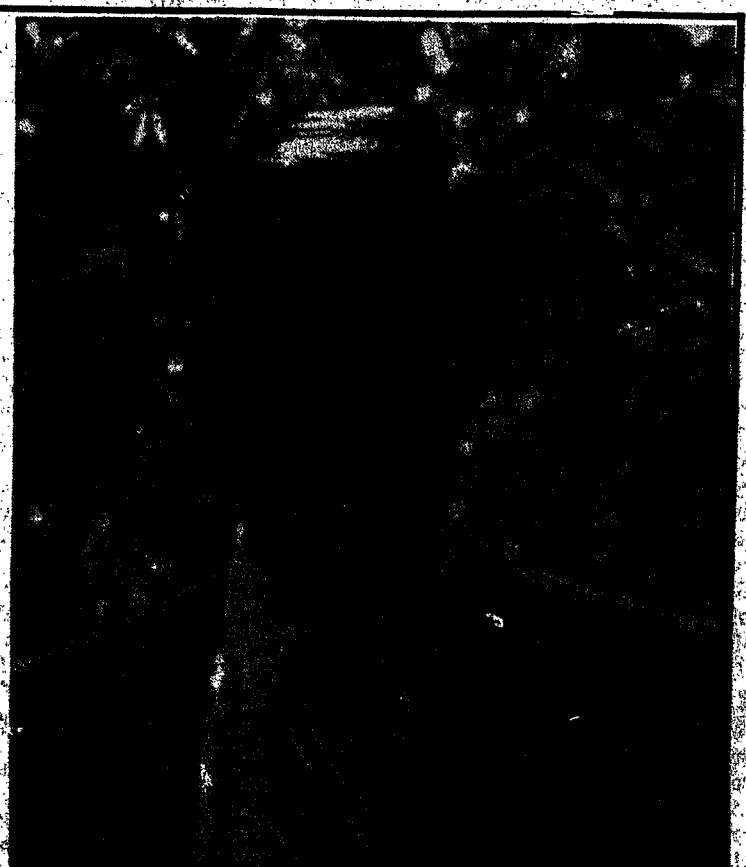

Utility bills shouldn't go up so fast. Fixing gas leaks can reduce the $75,000 to $100,000 worth of gas lost each year. Bay St. Louis has federal money for new gas lines in one part of town; but what about the rest of the city? We need to do some repair work on our own.

Materials and repair contractors cost the utility system $243,000 last year. Much of this can be saved by repairing sewer and water breaks as soon as they happen, and by avoiding "blank check" repair contracts that are wide open for abuse.

To save money we need better maintenance practices. We need a new mayor.

Vic Franckiewicz
a new mayor

would not state a position regarding the city joining the Gulf Coast Regional Waste Water Authority or the Waveland Regional Waste Water Authority until a report on Waveland's could be cut one-half, 'blank check' sewer and water repair projects should be eliminated, water line breaks should be repaired 'more quickly,' duplicate engineering contracts should not be issued, and improved preventive maintenance techniques should be instituted.

Buccola stated, "If there's any fat in the budget I will cut it."

Regarding prevention of lawsuits against the city, Frankiewicz said the city attorney should be consulted 'when there is a problem,' the mayor should be 'sensitive' to the law, and city operations should be scrutinized to find areas of exposure.

Buccola stated the city should 'get another lawyer.'

In reference to two lawsuits Bay St. Louis now faces, Bennett said people were 'sue happy' and his action was 'in response to calls I had.'

"I took action thinking I was helping the city," he added.

When asked if the city should implement a 'personnel or civil service system' for employees, Buccola replied, "No comment."

Bennett reported he is studying implementation of an employee handbook.

Frankiewicz endorsed a personnel system to eliminate 'political interference' in hiring practices and recommended it be implemented Oct. 1.

Bennett said Bay St. Louis has one of the 'finest school systems in Mississippi' and 'we should be proud of it.'

Frankiewicz feels more classrooms are needed and 'overhead costs' should be reduced.

Buccola said, "...there's always room for improvement."

Frankiewicz stated a truancy law, improved recreation facilities and more job opportunities are needed to reduce juvenile delinquency.

Buccola cited more parks and playgrounds, better recreation programs and more interesting classes as solutions.

Bennett also endorsed a truancy law. Regarding beachfront residents blocking public access privately owned beaches, Buccola and Bennett noted state law determines ownership rights.

Frankiewicz also agreed and added that property between 'the high and low water mark' is public property.

In response to a question stating Alcan Cable Co. trucks have damaged Central Avenue, Bennett said he is glad the company located here and he would 'not begin any controversy' regarding that issue.

Buccola agreed with Bennett's comments.

Frankiewicz said the street is eligible for 'highway funds.'

Regarding cooperation between the mayor and council, Frankiewicz said personality clashes should be avoided, responsibilities should be defined and when disputes arise.

Buccola reported he knows how to 'talk to people and make them understand.'

Bennett claimed the news media has blown his disagreements with the council out of proportion.

Buccola said employees should be hired based on qualifications, not race. Bennett said he hires employees based on ability.

Frankiewicz believes in 'an open hiring policy,' and civil rights.

Regarding a west Bay St. Louis area annexed in the mid-1960's lacking city utilities, Bennett and Frankiewicz both stated these services should be provided rather than a tax reduction.

Buccola stated there should be a tax cut for residents in the area.

COUNCILMAN AT LARGE

Councilman at large candidate Mike Benvenuti promised 'honest and economic' government, cited a need for better recreational facilities for children and better decision making, noted 'skyrocketing' natural gas prices, and stated the council must improve working relations with the mayor.

Incumbent Councilman Wilmer Seymour stated Bay citizens have 'been good to him,' he is willing to donate his time for citizens, and his term in office 'has been hectic sometimes,' but worthwhile.

Both candidates pledged to vote conscientiously, will seek full city services for residents in the annexed area, are against using city equipment on private property, are in favor of continuing secret city council 'workshop' meetings, recommended the mayor seek legal advice to avoid lawsuits, and feel a traffic study should be conducted at the corner of Washington Street and Old Spanish Trail.

WARD ONE

Ward One council candidate Ronnie Artigues stressed he is self-employed, has served on several local government commissions and is willing to answer any questions.

Candidate Gene Taylor said he has no financial obligations locally because of his employment in Pascagoula and time to devote to city council duties.

Both candidates support a private organization providing services for the underprivileged; industrial, business and residential growth in properly zoned areas; enforcing private property upkeep laws; and tax cuts for residents in the annexed area if city services are not provided.

The candidates are against use of city equipment on private property and secret 'workshop' meetings.

Regarding lawsuits, Artigues stated, "We should better utilize our attorney. I feel if the mayor made better use of the city attorney we wouldn't have problems."

Taylor said a lawsuit brings a question of 'some fault.'

"If the city is acting within the letter of the law there won't be any suits," he noted.

Taylor also warned that unregulated metropolitan growth might cause Bay St. Louis to outgrow its utility system, but said new business growth should be attracted with the idea of a community considered.

Artigues said vacant lots throughout the city should be developed to fully use present utility systems and provide more tax revenue.

WARD TWO

City council candidate Clarence Ladner listed his past experience in government and ability to devote a great deal of time to the position as qualifications.

Incumbent Councilman James Thrifflay noted historic preservation as 'an untapped resource,' his efforts to establish a Downtown walking tour of historic buildings, sewer service is available to all Ward Two residents, and he prompted the Bay St. Louis guitar lessons along with karate and judo lessons and swimming classes for the handicapped.

Also at the Waveland meeting, the board approved low bids for rehabilitation of homes in the Middletown area owned by Ollie Lee Butler and Otto Singleton.

Renovation estimates on the homes of Ethel Simpkins, Orla Richardson and Johnny Champine were over bid ceilings set by Housing and Urban Development for rehabilitation.

Harold Zimmerman, HUD director in Hancock County, said Simpkins' and Richardson's homes 'probably' will not be able to receive any financing for rehabilitation.

"Most likely they will continue to live in their homes the way they are," he said.

"We are not going to throw anybody out on the street," he added.

The board also authorized accepting low bids for demolition and clearing of five houses in the Middletown area and bids for clearing two other homes in that area which have already been demolished.

Zimmerman said none of the owners of those homes protested proceeding with demolition during public hearings established for that purpose.

Also during the 7:30 p.m. meeting at Waveland City Hall, the board:

—Heard a presentation from County Tax Collector-Assessor Edward Murtagh and Mapper James Cheatum on the county revaluation program;

—Appointed Dee Dastugue to the position of Deputy Secretary of Waveland.

—Kept a request by citizens living on New York Street to have that street vacated under advisement.

Municipal Separate School District to seek competitive bids on contracts.

Both candidates favored programs to reduce 'natural gas bills, support providing proper drainage for State Street and would not endorse either waste water plan until the study is completed.

Ladner stated, "I don't profess to have all the answers, but with my experience, qualifications and knowledge I hope to get answers to problems."

Thrifflay said, "I don't believe in giving everything to the fat cats. With my term in office I am the most experienced councilman in the Ward Two race."

WARD THREE

Ward Three council candidate Thomas Clark, a retired Missouri lawyer and local native, cited a 'lack of communication' between the council and citizens.

He promised monthly ward meetings and pledged $100 out of his monthly salary to hire 'a white and black' person to personally seek opinions from his constituents.

Incumbent Councilman Harry Farve stated, "I know the needs of the Third Ward. I feel the people have had good representation and I hope to continue to serve the people."

Candidate Charles Johnson pledged to 'help the people' of Ward Three, use good judgement and 'tell the truth.'

Candidate Herta Smith cited a need for restructuring the utility system, equal water and gas rates, a community center at the Valena C. Jones complex, moving the city equipment yard from behind the VCJ complex, a municipal swimming pool and better representation.

All candidates except Johnson agreed the city's electric generating windmills are unnecessary.

Johnson and Farve both agreed present street repair procedures are adequate considering the limited funds available.

Smith and Clark said street repair procedures are inadequate.

Farve reported the city's inventory system is 'good because we know what we have.'

However, Smith disagreed and said she 'had a problem' with the city's inventory and accountability procedures.

Both Clark and Johnson stated they were not familiar with the city's inventory system.

Regarding a Small Cities Program, which includes Ward Three, Farve stated he is in a 'better position' to obtain housing rehabilitation funds for his constituents.

Johnson said residents would receive funds.

Clark reported he would recommend that contractors revitalizing homes hire local residents in order to teach them a skill.

Smith noted she is familiar with a 'good-ole-boy' system prevalent in government and knows ways to secure 'specific funding for specific projects.'

When asked how he plans to communicate 'vital information' to citizens, Johnson said he would send a newsletter to all churches in the ward.

Smith reported she would mail a newsletter with postage costs paid out of her salary.

Clark reiterated his opening remarks.

Farve said he would continue talking with people at various civic functions.

Both Smith and Clark called for moving the city equipment yard and labeled it 'an accident waiting to happen.'

Farve stated, "The city equipment is under the supervision of the mayor and council."

Johnson said, "It doesn't look good, but I'm for peace and if we find another place we should put the yard there."

In his closing remarks Clark cited a pressing need to 'get children away from the adults' at night at the establishments at the corner of Sycamore and St. Francis Streets.

Farve said he 'feels he can continue to be a good councilman.'

Johnson stated, "I will do the best job and work strictly for the people."

Smith reported, "Responsibility and accountability will be my primary concern."

WARD FOUR

Ward Four council candidate Charles Hirstius said his business background qualifies him for the position in which he will seek better drainage for Spanish Acres.

Candidate Michael Mercier said his business background can improve city spending, a liability insurance policy is a priority for the city and equal utility rates are needed.

Candidate Truman Schultz Sr. noted his work experience as qualification for the position and he will work for 'good management' and 'harmony' in city government.

Candidate John Wilkerson stated he is running for office because he 'couldn't get too many answers to his questions.'

"I don't like what I read in the newspapers," he added.

Hirstius and Wilkerson endorsed secret 'workshop' meetings, but Mercier and Schultz support all open public meetings.

All the candidates believe Alcan poses no pollution threat to surrounding residents.

Regarding Spanish Acres drainage problems, Wilkerson recommended the city inspect subdivisions before accepting maintenance responsibility.

He also recommended the Louisville and Nashville Railroad lower a nearby culvert and the city manage routine city maintenance work more intelligently.

someday have an indoor-outdoor swimming pool available to all age groups.

He said the YMCA program is supervised in Ocean Springs 'mostly by volunteer workers.'

"It's amazing what some of those people can do with those kids," he said.

Rogers said a previous grant some years ago enabled the Ocean Springs YMCA to purchase sailboats, canoes and other types of boats.

He said that equipment and more will be used to benefit youths in Hancock and Harrison Counties.

In addition, Rogers said a 40 passenger bus can be used to transport youths from Hancock County and Pass Christian to Ocean Springs for gymnastics and swimming.

He invited the Waveland board to donate whatever equipment possible to improve the program even more, and stated all equipment will be supervised by trained personnel and checked after each day's activities.

Rogers said he has contacted Michael Necaise, Hancock County chancery clerk, and will be approaching the county's board of supervisors 'to see if it is possible for them to make some contribution to the program.'

Rogers showed the board a YMCA tabloid produced by the Gulf Coast YMCA concerning programs available in Ocean Springs.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland commented on the extent of the program in that area.

Activities in that program include, ceramics classes, classes in calligraphy, macrame, banjo, and guitar lessons along with karate and judo lessons and swimming classes for the handicapped.

Also at the Waveland meeting, the board approved low bids for rehabilitation of homes in the Middletown area owned by Ollie Lee Butler and Otto Singleton.

Renovation estimates on the homes of Ethel Simpkins, Orla Richardson and Johnny Champine were over bid ceilings set by Housing and Urban Development for rehabilitation.

Harold Zimmerman, HUD director in Hancock County, said Simpkins' and Richardson's homes 'probably' will not be able to receive any financing for rehabilitation.

"Most likely they will continue to live in their homes the way they are," he said.

"We are not going to throw anybody out on the street," he added.

The board also authorized accepting low bids for demolition and clearing of five houses in the Middletown area and bids for clearing two other homes in that area which have already been demolished.

Zimmerman said none of the owners of those homes protested proceeding with demolition during public hearings established for that purpose.

Also during the 7:30 p.m. meeting at Waveland City Hall, the board:

—Heard a presentation from County Tax Collector-Assessor Edward Murtagh and Mapper James Cheatum on the county revaluation program;

—Appointed Dee Dastugue to the position of Deputy Secretary of Waveland.

—Kept a request by citizens living on New York Street to have that street vacated under advisement.

Basic Training For All Dogs

Dogs of any age can be given basic training and become your—pride. This training teaches the dog to obey, to walk at heel, stop and sit when you stop, sit and stay where placed, and come when called. Make lessons no longer than 10 minutes (five for very young puppies.) Give plenty of praises and petting. No food rewards.

Teach sit and heel in one lesson. With the dog at your side, press down on the rump with your left hand, while pulling back on the collar. Command "sit." If the dog tries to stand, repeat until it learns.

After praise, command "heel," tug on the leash and move forward. If the dog purges forward, a gentle tap on the nose with a cane or umbrella will bring it back to heel. Thereafter, a swinging cane or umbrella will teach it to keep its head even with your body. If it lags behind, repeat the command, and give a gentle tug forward.

Vary your pace from slow to fast, repeat a dozen times, then rest, praise, and pet. After a week, try working without the leash. If the dog bolts, catch it, start again, while warning it with stronger commands. Working in an enclosed place, such as a tennis court helps. Finally, train with other dogs or varied distractions.

To teach "stay" sit the dog, warn it with your open palm, then walk slowly ly around it. If it moves, repeat it and try again. First work in the home or garage. Put the dog in a corner. Warn it to stay, then back away, using the open hand for restraint. Warn it also to stay while returning to it.

Next back slowly away, then turn your back. Repeat until it continues to stay. Then walk out of the room. If it leaves the corner, catch and replace it. Now you work out of doors, perhaps at first in an enclosed place, and finally in the presence of other dogs, or varied distractions.

To teach it to come when called, tie cord about 30 feet long to the dog's collar. Allow the dog to drag it until used to it. Then when the dog is not looking, or going away, call it, grab the end of the rope and begin to pull the dog in. The command will be "Towser, Come!"

Keep praising even if you have to drag the dog at first. Repeat again and again. Work again out of doors in an enclosed area. Repeat the lesson when the dog is off the leash.

When your training is completed, the dog will be proud; you'll be proud; and so will the neighbors. The makers of Gaines Dog Foods have a handy booklet, "What Every Good Dog Should Know" available free to anyone writing to Gaines Training Booklet, P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, IL 60901.

Pirates take back to back wins over d'Iberville Warriors

By RANDY PONDER
The Pass Christian Pirates smashed the d'Iberville Warriors, 11-6, Wednesday in North Biloxi and then made it two in a row, slipping past the same team, 3-1, Thursday at Pass Christian.

In Wednesday's 11-6 win, the Pirates slugged four home runs with shortstop Michael Hall hitting two over the fence. Richard Dedeaux and Jeff Ulrich also played long ball as Pass Christian pounded out fifteen hits.

Ulrich was also the winning pitcher, working four innings. Hall led the team with three RBIs followed by Ulrich, Dedeaux, and Ira Bradley with two each. Thomas Spencer and Randy Ladner each drove in one run.

Bradley scored four times for Pass Christian while team mate Hall crossed the plate three times.

The two teams played a somewhat different type game on Thursday with a total of only four runs being tallied.

Michael Hall connected for his seventh home run of the season in the third and Jeff Ulrich "added fun" scoring innings to lead the Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Warriors. Randy Ladner picked up the win as the Pirates improved their record to 7-6.

FISHIN' TIPS

from... Tom Mann

One of the toughest conditions for a fisherman to overcome is high wind. He can stand heat, cold, hunger, rain, sleet, snow, fog, most anything except wind. It's hard to whip, but there are ways.

For instance, it's foolish to venture onto big water when the wind is whipping up knee-high whitecaps. Not only is it virtually impossible to hold a boat but it can be downright dangerous.

At these times I do these things. Drive around and look for sheltered coves, or lake arms, especially on the lee side. In many of these you can launch a boat and get in hours of fishing, maybe discover a new hotspot.

Also fishable are streams down in valleys, and small farm ponds which can be fished from shore. A moderate amount of wind can help you catch fish because it blows buoyant plankton against the shore and minnows congregate to feed. Bigger fish come to feed on the minnows, so use a lure that looks and acts like a minnow. Never fight wind, it's bigger than you are.

Read the manufacturer's instructions for cleaning and lubricating reels. Wash all outer surfaces with mild soap and warm water, then apply a light coat of auto wax to prevent corrosion, especially around salt water. Remove old line and replace with new. Finally, check the drag for operation and smoothness.

Empty tackle boxes and wash them inside and out with detergent and warm water. Rinse thoroughly. If lure finishes are being dulled by contact with the box, glue cork to the bottoms of tray sections.

Lures should be washed and rinsed as well. Replace broken hooks and sharpen all points. Check alignment of hook eyes, metal lips and spinners.

A few hours of tackle maintenance may or may not be to your liking, but it'll sure make fishing more enjoyable.

Bay High Senior Class rehearsing murder drama

Bay High's Senior Class is currently rehearsing its forthcoming production of the drama, "Absolutely Murder." The three-act play, set in an old dilapidated 18th Century gunpowder factory on the shores of Lake Champlain. Eccentric old Aunt Kate, not knowing the mill is the scene of a knife murder, wants to buy the building and gives her niece, Kate, and her two boyfriends, Shey and

Lane, lots of problems both in courting and detective work. The arrival of three nitwitted girls escorted by the strange Dr. Hooker, further complicates the situation. The four have lost their way in a storm as Dr. Hooker was taking the girls to Berrydale, a mental resthome. As the search begins for the murderer, the corpse seems to be moving about on its own. When it is discovered the murderer has only one hand, some terrifying moments occur. Comic scenes in the play give relief to the audience in the otherwise bone-chilling turn of events. "Absolutely Murder," will be presented Friday, May 1, at the Jr. High auditorium on Ulman Avenue. Admission is $1.00 at the door. Curtain rise is set for 8 p.m.

Daniel feels PSC ruling 'defies common sense'

The Mississippi Public Service Commission has issued an order granting Mississippi Power Company a $10.6 million rate hike, or approximately 27 percent of the amount originally requested by the company.

Victor J. Daniel Jr., chairman of the board of Mississippi Power Company, feels the commission's decision "defies common sense and logic." "This decision is totally unrealistic under current economic conditions. The 10.6 percent return on rate base sought by Mississippi Power Company is reasonable, completely justifiable in view of unrelenting double-digit inflation, and supported by convincing evidence submitted to the commission," Daniel said.

"The economic and social well being of our service area and its citizens in southeast Mississippi depends on a reliable supply of electric energy today and in the years ahead. Providing his electric energy is Mississippi Power Company's responsibility and reasonable rate increases are essential if it is to remain financially strong enough to meet its service obligations," he stated.

"In a highly inflationary economy, it is essential that state regulators provide Mississippi Power Company with timely and adequate rate increases. In view of this decision by the commission, it is obvious that Mississippi Power Company will have to take additional steps to protect its financial stability. What those steps will be cannot be determined until the commission's order has been studied in detail," he concluded.

also be included. "Keep in mind, one potential juvenile offender, if deterred from trouble, can save the community $15,149. That money can be spent in positive directions or rehabilitation for not only that child but many other children as well," he stated.

Haas said 'heartache' involved with the delinquent, his family and victims can be avoided in the majority of cases if the community acts now.

The Youth Court has been contacted recently by Gene Rogers, program director and coordinator of the Gulf Coast YMCA and the Juvenile Diversion Program for Hancock and Harrison County, along with David Harris, general director of the YMCA, and Walt Dye, executive director.

A Juvenile Diversion Program is going to be implemented by the Gulf Coast YMCA in both Hancock and Harrison Counties, Haas said.

He stated the program is an alternative program for treatment of certain types of youthful offenders, especially status offenders.

He added however, the program will be open to all children in the community.

"Upon referral of the Youth Court personnel, we will be sending up to ten youths from Hancock County to participate in this program," Haas said. He stated the youths will be bussed to the Ocean Springs YMCA for swimming, weight-lifting, judo, karate, gymnastics and outdoor sports. "Counseling services will also be available," he said.

"These referrals will be children who have been involved with the Youth Court in the past as well as the present."

He stated children 'who might' become involved with the Youth Court may also be included.

Haas said, "We feel we can greatly affect the national and local youthful crime statistics by developing and implementing goals to strengthen the ego structure in each youthful participant." He stated that possibility of achieving that goal exists through developing a youth's competence in special skills, increasing awareness of options in adopting lifestyles, increasing a sense of belongingness, developing feelings of self worth and decision-making power along with establishing knowledge in a youth "that someone cares."

The April meeting of the Diamondhead Garden Club was held in the Mississippi Room of the Fairway Villa Resort, with Mrs. Joseph Finley presiding.

She announced that Mrs. L.R. Changnon and Mrs. W.J. Stansbury had been accepted as new members, and that Mrs. A.E. Moore's request to be transferred to associate membership from the active membership roster had been complied with.

Mrs. Finley thanked all those who had helped with the flowers for the homes of the recent Pilgrimage. Mrs. Harrie Devine, Pilgrimage chairman, said that over 400 guests had visited the homes on display.

Mrs. Finley also gave a report on the Garden Clubs of Mississippi, Inc. convention held in Oxford, Miss. in late March. Two other members attended, Dr. Frances Mayfield and Mrs. Clarence A. Evans.

Mrs. Evans has been appointed historian of the state organization by the newly elected state president. Two awards were won by the Diamondhead Club, a second place for Memorial Gardens, and a first place for last year's Pilgrimage.

Mrs. George Kollasch, litter control chairman, thanked those who had helped on Clean-Up Day to get the Diamondhead area in shape for the Pilgrimage.

The Garden Club, at Mrs. Kollasch's suggestion, has decided to give the best maintained business establishment a Beautification Award each month. A large poster made by Mrs. Jerry Reshew was presented to Pete's Chevron Station for April.

Mrs. Finley announced that Mrs. William Timpert, the club's conservation and ecology chairman, had been appointed litter and conservation chairman at the Deep South Regional convention, and will represent six states.

Report on the Flower Show was given by the chairman, Mrs. E.R. Phillpott.

Two blue ribbons in the Small Arrangements Division went to Mrs. Leslie Page for her design, "Spring", and to Mrs. Jan Brameyer for her design, "Winter".

In the Horticulture Division of the show Top Awards were won as follows: Mrs. Dix Ashman, the Arboreal Award for her cut specimen of Sweet Broom; Award of Horticultural Excellence, Mrs. Robert Hickman for a cut branch of Weigela; Award of Merit to Mrs. D. Wattigny for a purple Bearded Iris.

The Sweepstakes ribbon for the most blue ribbons won the Horticulture Division was given to Mrs. Hillaire Ogden.

The Workshop chairman, Mrs. Jan Brameyer, an accredited flower show judge, gave a brief report on how the flower show appeared through the eyes of a judge.

The nominating committee chairman, Dr. Frances Mayfield, read the names of the new slate of officers for 1981-82, which are as follows: Mrs. George Kollasch, president; Mrs. F. Satterlee, first vice president; Mrs. Harold Morris, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Hickman, treasurer; Mrs. Leon Barnett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jerry Reshew, historian; and Mrs. Joseph Finley, parliamentarian.

Following the business meeting, a skit entitled "Fashion Forecast for America the Beautiful" was presented. It was written by Mrs. Clarence A. Evans who acted as commentator.

Mrs. Horatio Weston, the first model, wore an outfit representing the appearance of the community in its worst state of litter, but as the commentary continued, her costume was transformed into a thing of beauty.

Mrs. Jack Mohr, the second model, was dressed to represent polluted water, but her outfit changed to resemble pure, clean water.

Mrs. Russell Sutton, third model's garment represented a junk yard, which was transformed into a daisy-type flower.

Mrs. Edward Brennan modeled a bluebird costume, appearing first as a neglected and unhappy bird, who became perky and alert when the commentary outlined what good food and treatment of birds could do.

Inspired by the skit, a club member, Mrs. Jerry Reshew, has submitted the following poem:

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS
As the weather in the Northern lands became so very cold
The birds began to gather - the slow, the swift, the bold
To make their yearly pilgrimage - what a sight to see -
Like a rainbow - every shade of color - there seemed to be
Their twitterings and chirpings made a melody so grand
Like the finest modern symphony heard throughout the land
But when they arrived here

the trees had been felled They couldn't even rest - how could they raise their fledglings
When they couldn't even make a nest?

The water was polluted - no one had put out seeds
How could we be so thoughtless of our little friends' basic needs?

So away they flew - the Starlings, Robins and little Finches too,

The Cardinals, the Mockingbirds, and the Buntings oh, so blue.
They've gone to seek a better place - perhaps across the sea -

And do you know whom this hurts most of all?
That's right - it's you and me!

CREATIVITY AWARD—This design depicting "Nature's Artistry" won the Creativity Award in that section for Mrs. Thomas Carlin in the Diamondhead Garden Club's Flower Show.

TRICOLOR AWARD—Mrs. Leslie Page captured top honors for her entry in the Tricolor division of the Diamondhead Garden Club's Flower Show. This design was called "The Painted Gulf Seashore."

Easy Bouillon-Based Onion Soup

Classic Onion Soup is a universal favorite with a French flair. The simple secret to the goodness of onion soup is the slow simmering of the paper-thin slices of onion, plus a few staple ingredients in the beef-flavored bouillon for 30 or more minutes.

CLASSIC ONION SOUP (Makes about 1 1/2 quarts)

4 cups thinly sliced onions
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1/4 cup butter or margarine
5 1/2 cups water
1/2 cup dry sherry or white wine, optional
8 teaspoons Wyler's® Beef-Flavor Instant Bouillon OR 8 Beef-Flavor Bouillon Cubes
6 slices French bread, 1/4-inch thick, buttered and toasted
6 slices natural Swiss cheese, cut in half crosswise

In large saucepan, cook onion and garlic in butter until onions are golden brown. Add water, sherry, if desired, and bouillon; bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes to blend flavors. Place soup in 6 oven-proof soup bowls. Top each serving with a bread slice and cheese. Broil until cheese melts. Serve immediately. Refrigerate leftovers.

Tip: If sherry is omitted, substitute 1/2 cup water.
